

Jack Bevilacqua (Advisory Board Member): Jack became involved in Cure on Wheels in 2008 as a board member after participating in the Pan Mass Challenge from 2006-2008. He started riding in the PMC after his mother passed away from colon cancer in 2003 and during his second year of riding, his father passed away from lung cancer. Jack moved to the advisory board in 2010 due to increased family and employment commitments. However, he and his wife, Brittany, still organize an annual comedy show that benefits Cure on Wheels, called Crack up Cancer Comedy Benefit. The comedy show is a tribute to his parents who persevered through years of clinical trials and treatments, and showed what true courage was in the face of adversity. Louis and Betty Bevilacqua never played victims and always kept laughing and joking through their pain, and never wanted a pity party. Therefore, Brittany and Jack thought that making people laugh was the best way to honor them. Jack resides in Tampa with his wife Brittany and daughter Lena, and currently works as a Director of Corporate Compliance for a health care company.
